FAREWELL ADDRESS: GENTLEMEN OF THE HOWARD MEDICAL Cours—We are nearing the close of a labor of love in 2 field where naught but your own high sense of professional duty, your sympathy and philanthro phy have largelled you to action. When from the distant homes of many of you the cry of cistress was heard, you promptly answered the call, and you, with our brotherhood, have imperilled your lives that others might live. A more noble, self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of humanity never prompt-d human conduct. Knowing the danger and pecuniary loss that must follow the step to be taken, you stopped not to consider the certainty of the one nor to count the cost of the other. Disease, suffering and death were in the land, you heard the wall and that was enough. From the north and south, east and west, you came to help the distress d, and bray-ly have you administered to the physical wants of a suffering p-opic, personally strangers to you. Through the doors of rich and poor, high and humble, all wretched allke, and all strangers allke, you have passed in and out on your mission of humanity and love, heeding not the danger that threatened your own lives on every hand. The scenes through which you have thus passed can sever be pictured—so heartrending and horrible that we shudder to reflect upon them. They were scenes which have more severely tested the coolness of your unmanity than those which try the qualities of a oldier on the field of battle. There, the messengers of death speed their way swiftly and unseen in the lidst of such tumult and passion, rush and uproar, it to permit no time or opportunity for thought of GENTLEMEN OF THE HOWARD MEDICAL has been seen as it moved along comsuming with a very fire the vitals of its victim. Surely the stoutest hear, has witnessed and engaged in scenes which might well have given it pause. But onward and onward, in and out, through heat and rain, in daylikht and darkness, at all times and everywhere, you have hastened your steps whenever and wherever there was work to do. God knows you found it on every side, at every moment. Before your very eyes, you have seen entire families pass away, one by one, in quick procession to the grave, baffling your skill and energy to save them, yet never breaking your notice spirits nor causing you to fulter or quall with fear. But I will speak no further of what you have seen, and done, and suffered. My heart is too full, and my words are too barren to convey what I feel. What you have seen can never be described; what you have done and endured will need no language to be perpetuated and endured will need no language to be perpetuated in the hearts of this people. Your matchless courage, your devotion and kindness, your deep and practical sympathy, your readiness to respend to their piteous appeal for help, and the unfaltering zeal and alacrity with which you entered upon and continued in the active and perficus duties assigned to the later than the section of the performance of the section of the performance of the section of the performance o continued in the active and perilius duties assigned from all bear testimony to your worth and manhood; to your true nobility of soul and purpose, in terms which make pairry any praise I may utter. Well done, noble nombers of a noble profession. But, alast some are not with us. They have already left us. Many have fallen by our side. We have buried them in the quiet shades of Elimwood; their brown no longer burn with a verish heat; but, instead, increase adorn them. Their hearts no longer ache with anxiety and hope for the safety of these for whom they ell, but our hearts now yearn for them. Their deeds, though many, will not perish in the memories of a grateful people, for whom they became martyrin a time of devastation and sorrow, and in the catalogue of heroes in our fraternity will be written the

While two yet livger upon a soldier's uncertain couch Drs. S. H. M'Cormick and R. T. Woolfolk, Your labors have now ceased Through the dark death cloud which has so long overshadowed us, the sun-time of health is now breaking upon us. Soon many of you will return to your homes. When you go, carry with you to the dear people of every section, whence you came, messages of love and gratitude from a sortowing portion of our land. While their liberal hands have bounteously helped us in the hour of dire distress, you have come as the living embodiment of their generosity, heroism and sympathy. And now, before we part, permit me to thank you from the depth of my heart for the uniform kindness and courtesy you have shown to me as the medical director of our association. When you placed yourselves under my charge and direction, you seemed to have lost all sight of self, and to become true soldiers under the command of one. The intelligence and skill you have displayed, the fortitude you have shown, has time and again filled me with admiration beyond measure, and caused me to realize that you were an organized band of he oes indeed. So full has been your sympathy, and so earnest your zeal, have pushed along from house to house from morning until miunight, and have never wearied in waiting and watching by the beside of the sick and dying everywhere. Many of us may not meet again.

God grant that we may never meet for service like this. Partings with those who have endeared themselves to us are always sad, but in this there is an element of gladness mixed with its sorrow, for we know that it is a returning health to these desolated homes which occasions our separation: otherwise, we would not part until death had assigned us a restling-place with those for whom we have struggled, and with our brothers who have gone before. Farewell, dear comrades, wherever you may go or abide, my affection for and gratitude to you will ever remain, lasting and deep, as your deeds deserve.

Resolved, That the ready response of our professional northern brethien has forever buried the hatchet of sectional political annity, and hereafter we will know no north, no south, but one federal unity. we will know no north, no south, but one federal we will know no north, no south, but one federal unity.

When the deafening applause with which this sentiment was received had subsided, Dr. Palmer, of Florida, respanded feelingly and appropriately to the third regol'r toast.

The fourth teast was responded to by Mr. President Langetaff as follows:

GENTLEMEN-In response to this toast, I may be that this association was organized September 19, 1867. It is unnecessary for me to be'll you why the association was organized, you are familiar with its workings. Its first and only object was to do goodnot be the state of the state of the september of the september of the september of the spidemic of 1867. In looking back to the epidemic of 1867 and 1873 and at the present one, the terrible fact presents itself that each suggeding epidemic has far exceeded the previous one. This retrospection brings with it the remembrance of our brothers who have laid down their lives in their efforts to save from death their fever stricken fellow-beings. The first of our association to die was the convergence Win Everst of Missouri the last set of efforts to save from death their fever stricken fellow-belings. The first of our association to die was the courageous Wm. by the bedside of the afflicted, often without food or rest for thirty-six to forty-eight hours, too much graffitude cannot be feit. Our medical director has spoken of the noble work done by the physicians. Full well do I bear evidence, if any were wanting, to the truthfulness of his remarks. Your visits have been, to a large extent, to the poorer classes, where poverty exists, but seldom to the merchant's princely palace. In their name, in the name of the Howard association, and in the name of all our people. I thank you. Hest assured that you will be remembered, and that your good deeds done here will rise to heaven and be numbered there.

Dr. Wifarland, of Savannah, arose, and in the lame of the State of Georgia returned thanks for the kindness extended the physicians and nurses of Savannah while in the city of Memphis. In his remarks he was partisularly co-applimentary to the Peabody hotel, its managers and subordinates. Dr. M'Farland grew eloquent in a teeling address, which we regret we have not space for.
